Yearbook: Desktop Publishing

In the words of Del Campo High School Yearbook Adviser Jim Jordan, “Yearbook: It’s not a class; it’s a commitment. It doesn’t build character, it reveals it.”

And according to Carole Wall-Simmons, “A yearbook is a picture book, a history book, a record book, a reference book, a public relations tool, a business, a time machine, and an educational experience.

This is a class like no other. The entire school body looks forward to the day these keepsakes are handed out. So, creating this yearbook is a huge undertaking and requires more than just class time. It requires extra hours, extra perseverance and an extra dose of get-up-and-go.

Many lifeskills are sure to sink in during production. Besides working on the latest Adobe Suites technology, the girls will be immersed in teamwork, the spirit of cooperation, time management and will be pushed to find their creative genius.

I hope this will be challenging for the girls. I also hope they will be “all-in” on this project. After all, that’s the only way to create a successful and treasured yearbook. Then receive that satisfaction of a job well done.
